France: 'Alluring market, attractive resources'

(Financial Times, "Business Locations in France", December 2010)

After three years of stability, the number of job-creating foreign investments recorded by the IFA and France's regional development agencies increased by 22% in 2010 to 782 projects. As such, 15 foreign business leaders, on average, decided to invest in France every week. Over 30,000 jobs will be created or maintained by these new investments.

With 29 new job-creating investment projects in 2010, Japan featured among France's top 10 investors.

Today, around 430 Japanese companies are doing business at 650 sites in France, employing nearly 65,000 people. This number is up (+5.4%) on 2010. Of this total, 34% of jobs are in the automotive sector, followed by 22% in electronic goods. The share of these two leading sectors historically is decreasing slowly, while agribusiness now accounts for 11% of jobs and the chemicals industry 8%. After showing signs of recovery since the global economic downturn in 2009, manufacturing output has increased and now accounts for 42% of Japanese-owned economic activity, while commercial activities remain the second most common form of Japanese investments in France (39%).

This document presents some of the results of the latest annual survey conducted by IFA Japan in early 2011.
